To Whom it may concern.

Leitner Poma of America has been contracted by Steamboat Ski & Resort Corporation to relocate the bottom station of Christy Peak Express. Leitner Poma of America is the original manufacture of Christy Peak. The relocation only involves relocation of the existing equipment and no new equipment is required. Modification of the mid station rope handling equipment will be performed in the mid station machine room. The lower lift line from the mid station to the bottom will be relocated into the new alignment. The Colorado Passenger Tramway Safety Board considers this as a major modification (as defined) by Colorado State Statutes. Steamboat has made the appropriate notifications to the CPTSB. The Colorado Passenger Tramway Safety Board is the authority having jurisdiction on the Christy Peak Express as well as the relocation work.

The lift was originally installed under the CPTSB authority and has passed yearly licensing and operation inspections since.

Leitner Poma of America will perform inspections by Colorado licensed engineering staff to assure all functional and safety aspects of the machinery relocation are met during the relocation. This includes the lower operator cabin and it's foundations, structural integrity, electrical and operator controls.

The lift will receive a full commissioning/load testing under the supervision of the CPTSB authority.
